Newsletter Term 2 - Issue 3 30th May 2014

From the Principal's Desk

From the Principal

In the last couple of weeks I have interviewed a few new families for enrolment. This is always good fun as often the children say some very funny things at these interviews to the horror of their parents. One of the great things for me is sharing with the parents their hopes for their children as they begin at a new school. It is great to also hear the reasons the parents have chosen St Andrews as the place to educate their children. Over the past week, I have heard parents saying that they have heard that St Andrews is a wonderful school. A place where their children will receive a quality education in a friendly environment where there is a strong sense of community. The children just grow so quickly at school and it is a great privilege to be part of this journey.

This week the children will be talking about the many people in the world that are less fortunate than ourselves. On Monday we sent home a diocesan works fund envelope. Many of you would have received this at the Sunday mass during the last few weeks so we are not expecting another donation. However some of you may have missed this opportunity to support the good works of the diocese. If you are able to contribute please return the envelopes to school at your earliest convenience. It is the Holy Spirit who God sent to empower us to love one another and to be witnesses to our faith. The Spirit gives us many daily opportunities to express our love for those in need in our homes, our school, our places of work, our parishes and the world. Let us open our hearts more generously to the Spirit so that we can be a positive influence on the people around us.

COSHC Update- Things are progressing well and as planned for the opening of the COSHC in term 3. I meet with Michael McGrath last week to organise furniture and other details. I would like to assure all those people interested in a place either for before or after school care for children that you will have no problem securing a position. When more details come to hand I will pass the information on.

On the Parenting ideas website I found a couple of ideas that you might find useful to use in your own parenting journey. Here are a couple of them.

Responsibility and consequences. As children get older, you can increasingly give them responsibility for their own behaviour and the chance to experience the natural consequences of that behaviour. You don't have to be the bad guy all the time. For example, if she forgot to put her lunchbox in her bag, she will go hungry at lunchtime. It is her hunger and her consequence and it won't hurt her to go hungry just that one time. Sometimes, with the best intentions, we do so much for our children that we don't allow them to learn for themselves. At other times you need to provide consequences for unacceptable behaviour. For these times, it is best to ensure that you have explained the consequences and that your children have agreed to them in advance.

Say it once and move on. Nagging and criticising is boring for you and doesn't work. Your child will just end up tuning you out. Try to avoid idle threats. Your child will very quickly work these out and ignore them. The best way is to let them know what you think once and then take action if you need to set limits or back up a rule.

Consequences don't have to be harsh, mean or long to be effective. The advantage of keeping a consequence short is that you quickly give your child an opportunity to try again. For example, if the television is turned off for 10 minutes because children are fighting over it, they will quickly have another opportunity to solve the problem in a different way. If it is turned off for the rest of the day, there are no more opportunities in the day for them to learn to manage the situation differently. Also, a long consequence can be worse for parents than children – a child deprived of his bike for a week is likely to get bored and cranky!

Wherever possible, explain consequences to the children ahead of time so they don't come as a surprise. If you talk to the children about possible consequences they're less likely to be resentful and angry when they are implemented. Negotiating consequences ahead of time makes them more effective and easier to implement if they are ever needed.

It has been a privilege over the past few years to be able to visit other schools to see how they provide an education for the children in their communities. This is the best form of professional learning when teachers can visit other schools and share ideas. This week we have four teachers visiting another school to share their experiences which will help in the formulation of our agenda for our Staff Development Day on Tuesday, 10th June. There will be no school for students on this day.

This week I had the pleasure of sitting down and listening to Anthony in Year 2 read. He read very confidently-what a great job I have and thanks to Anthony for making my day special.

Kind regards Michael Tonnet Principal

Children's Safety before school- As you are aware supervision of the children does not begin until 8:20am each day. We are happy to open the gates in the morning before this time so in the event that you need to drop the children off before 8:20am that they can be safely inside the school grounds. Again I ask that children do not come to school before morning supervision starts to allow the staff to get on with their work of preparing for the days learning unless it is unavoidable.

Reporting to Parents

Things to know:

- Student's Learning Reports (except Kindergarten) report individual student learning achievement according to an E-A scale.
- All schools formally report in writing, twice a year, to parents regarding students' learning achievement in all subjects, including Religious Education.
- Students' Learning Reports (except Kindergarten) will publish the performance of the individual students relative to the rest of the cohort e.g.

E	D	C	B	A
Elementary	Basic	Sound	High	Excellent
Achievement	Achievement	Achievement	Achievement	Achievement
5	14	27	11	3

The number of students achieving at various levels is not determined by any mathematical formula but by the year group's achievement.

Reports will go home on Friday 20th June. Parents are urged to complete and return their Parent Teacher interview sheet.

PARENT TEACHER INTERVIEWS

This Friday 6th June, EVERY child at St Andrew's will be bringing home their confirmed Parent/Teacher Interview time.

Please check your child's school bag and inform the classroom teacher if this note does not arrive home.
